A Warning.

MR. EDITOR,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Sold by all dealers or sent post free on receipt of price 50c. for small or $1 for large size bottles by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont. d&w

A Nuisance.

A gentleman of this city complains of an offensive heap of offal, the refuse of a slaughter house, which has been dumped close to the Carey road about a mile outside the city limits. Several narrow escapes from accidents have occurred by reason of the stuff as horses become frightered at the smell. The noxious effluvia is also highly objectionable to people who have occasion to pass along the road in that vicinity. The party who dumps the offal is known and threats of legal action have been made unless the nuisance is abated.

AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

ELOPEMENTS AND MARRIAGES OF THE DAY.

A Young Man Does Not Wait for His Deceased Wife's Sister—A Wild West Show Furnishes a Romance—Dealings in Dirt—A Big Deal in Real Estate.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The Tribune's Kansas City special says an immense deal in lands in Northwestern Texas, engineered in this city in the last week, has been closed by Wm. Specht, founder of Specht's colony in Northwestern Texas, and Gustave Ranger, of New York. They purchased seven hundred thousand acres, known as "No Man's Land," and 550,000 acres more in Northwestern Texas, making a total of 1,250,000 acres, for lease to cattlemen as grazing lands. Messrs. Sprecht and Ranger claim that the syndicate for which they have conducted this deal has a clear title obtained from the Spanish agents. They say Senator Edmunds and other prominent lawyers have passed upon it favorably. This is, in extent of lands purchased, one of the largest deals on record.

THE SEAL CATCH.

Representatives of the American Commercial Company Sizing up.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Lyons brothers, representatives here of the North American Commercial company, says: "The dispatch published yesterday from Victoria and San Francisco as to the season's catch of seals, have misrepresented the facts. They say the trade supposed those 42,000 seals had strayed over to the Alaska company, on the Siberian coasts, from the islands of St. Paul and St. George and that with the other 20,000 skins, alleged to be on the way, there would be many more skins in market than were expected.

The truth of the matter is these skins reported are the Copper island catch. The trade will understand that and that any alleged catch above this 42,000 are slaggy or worthless skins.

Mr. Lyons says the local catch this year will be 115,000 short of that of last year.

ALL IN THE FAMILY.

An Elopement Showing a Perverted State of Morality.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—A World's Philadelphia special says: Not that Martin Carleton loved his wife Laura less but loved her sister Ada more, explains the secret of the husband's infidelity to his martial vows, of his recent flight across the Atlantic with an unlawful mate, and of legal proceedings instituted against him by his unhappy wife. Ada and Laura Hoffman were daughters of a wealthy widow living in New York. Ada was the senior and it was agreed she should have the first wealthy suitor who presented himself. Carleton was an Erie, Pa., jeweler of means when he met the girls seven years ago, and though he preferred tall and fair Laura, the mother's resolution was that she should marry Ada first. It would seem that both sisters were in love with him, for when he made a runaway marriage with Laura, Ada vowed revenge. She went to work to undermine her sister in her husband's affections and succeeded so well that she was able to carry him off a few weeks ago to Europe. The first news that the injured wife had of her husband's flight came in a letter from her sister Ada, in which she reminded her sister of how she (Laura) had stolen her (Ada's) affianced, and added that she was now on the deep blue sea with Martin Carleton by her side. For months he has been her husband in all but name she wrote, but now he has consented to give you up. "It's all in the family, you know." Mrs. Carleton was prostrated by the news. Her lawyer has brought suit for divorce and she has returned to her mother's house.

ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

A Young American Captures a Wife in a Wild West Show.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—A wedding took place in this city last Sunday night which grew out of a most romantic meeting and courtship. On Saturday afternoon a bronzed faced young man walked into the Grand Central, called for a room, and registered as G. W. Campbell, Chicago. He had come to New York to meet his bride, who was to arrive here from England on the steamer City of Rome, which was due on Sunday. The young man was a son of James H. Campbell, the millionaire coal man and head of the firm of James H. Campbell & Co., Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha. He is now 25 years old. When only 15 he ran away from home and went to Texas, where he followed the wild life of a cowboy for five years. Then he entered the employ of his father's firm in Chicago, as salesman, which position he has held ever since. Three years ago the firm sent him to England to attend to a lot of cattle the house was sending there, and while there waiting for another shipment he visited Mexican Joe's Wild West show in Liverpool, and found among the cowboy employees several of his former companions on the plains. At their invitation he, in a spirit of fun, took part in the daily exhibitions of riding, lassoing and shooting. One day during the performance he picked up a silver dollar from the ground by reaching down from the back of his horse while going at full speed. Among those who applauded vigorously was a young girl who was with he father in a private box. While waving her handkerchief to the gallant rider a gust of wind snatched it from her hand and carried it to the centre of the track, where it fell in the sawdust. Campbell, without checking his horse, bent low in the saddle, and as he swept by picked it up. He was cheered to the echo as he turned his pony and riding up to the box returned the handkerchief to its fair owner. Introductions followed through the medium of mutual friends. The occupants of the box proved to be Thomas Dodd, of West Derby, near Liverpool, and his daughter Helen, 18 years of age. Between the young people it was a case of love at first sight and it was not long before the young folks were engaged, but when the parents of both heard it objections were raised that threatened to shatter their hopes. It was finally decided that young Campbell should return home and if, in the course of a year or so, their love remained unchanged, no further objections would be raised. Campbell returned to Chicago where he has been ever since, until his arrival in this city on Saturday. His bethrothed decided that as he could not get away from business at this season of the year, that she would come out to America and get married here. She came under the escort of Capt. John R. Dewar, superintendent of Guion S. S. Co., arriving on the City of Rome yesterday. She was met at the pier by her betrothed who escorted her to apartments at the Grand Central Hotel, and last evening at 9 o'clock the wedding took place in Association Hall. Rev. Dr. Dixon performed the ceremony in the presence of about fifty people, relatives and friends of the groom. Capt. Dewar gave away the bride. Col. E. M. Clark, who was originally connected with Campbell & Co., acted as best man, and Mrs. J. F. Van Deheid stood up with the bride. Miss Todd, who is a beautiful brunette, was dressed in a handsome white satin gown and wore one red rose in her dark hair. The groom was in evening dress. At the close of the ceremony the party were driven back to the hotel, where supper was served The couple will remain in the city for two days and then start on the wedding tour.

SPORTING NOTES.

Brief Resume of Sporting Matters Here and There.

The glove contest between Dan O'Donnell, of San Francisco, and Billy Waters, of Victoria, for $150 aside and gate receipts, comes off this (Monday) evening, at the Philharmonic Hall, commencing at 8:00, and it is a safe thing to say that it will be strictly on its merits, and the faking element for once done away with. The public are guaranteed a good exhibition between local and other talent.

Mr. E. A. Blow, of the Winnipeg Free Press, who arrived on Saturday night, will take in the excursion to the north on the Islander, and will write it up for the Free Press.

PROFESSOR BRYCE EXPRESSES HIS VIEWS.

Reciprocity Talked of by a Student of it—Carmen Sylva Crowned Queen of Bards—Result of the Seal Catch—Stanley Still Very Weak.

OTTAWA, Sept. 15.—Prof. James Bryce, the well known English publicist and author of "American Commonwealth," was asked regarding reciprocity between this country and the U.S. He said he did not profess to be accurately informed of the true situation of affairs among the communities of this continent. For that reason he did not like to say anything with respect to the efforts to simplify and increase trade relations between the two countries. Among the best informed people he said reciprocity treaties were not regarded as victories for free trade. The professor then went on to say he observed that one of the arguments used against closer trade was that it would bring with it a tendency to closer political relations. "What," was asked, "would be the feelings of the English people at any proposal of political union?" "I feel sure the English people would hear of any such proposal with feelings of unmingled regret. We are taking far more interest in our colonies now than ever we did, and I do not think that at any time in our recent history would threatened dismemberment of the colonial empire have caused more profound regret than now. We see a great many people from colonies in England now and intercourse has increased our interest in them. Of course it's the same in regard to the Americans. The two people mingle freely on both sides of the ocean and the tendency of that is to remove misunderstanding and promote good feeling. From my experience as a traveler in the United States I perceive but little of that antipathy to England of which we hear so much. There is doubtless some of it among the Irish Americans, but England has treated Ireland badly, and when she ceases to do so, which is not far off, this source of irritation will be removed." Asked if he thought free admission to the markets of the United States would be of advantage to Canada, Prof. Bryce said as a stranger he would hardly be bold enough to express an opinion, but taking the one article of fish, it was quite apparent that free access to the American market must be of immense advantage. Prof. Bryce is now in Winnipeg and will probably visit the coast.

CARMEN SYLVA CROWNED.

Welshmen Feel the Absence of Stanley at the Ceremony.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Carmen Sylva, Queen of Roumania, had a great day at Welsh Eisteddfod at Bangor on Thursday. She was admitted into the bardic circle, initiated into the mysteries of Welsh bardism and invested with the blue ribbon of the order by the arch druid. Later, when the victorious bard was crowned, she laid her hand, with those of the other bards, upon the gleaming sword held by the arch druid, whereat the multitude assembled, shouted and danced with joy. The queen went through the whole of the proceedings with zest and listened with apparent interest to the rendering of many Welsh poems. She declared she had for years taken great interest in Cymru history, and to prove it read a little thing of her own dated from Landudno the same day, with the refrain: "Hail, Cymru, old Cymru forever." In spite of the presence of the Queen of Romania, however, the Welshmen felt the absence of Stanley severely, and wondered if he was really as sick as Lady Burton's letter from Switzerland, where the distinguished explorer is visiting Sir Richard Burton, indicated. As this morning's dispatches say that Stanley, though still very weak, climbed two or three mountain peaks yesterday, the Eisteddfod will doubtless be reassured. It was a somewhat singular coincidence that Rev. John Rowlands who presided over the Welsh national, is a namesake of Stanley, John Rowlands being the explorer's name before he changed it to that of his adopted father and benefactor, and the one that he inscribed in the visitors' book in Dudley Castle when on a visit to his mother after his first trip to America.

The police have not yet succeeded in capturing the Indian murderer Siomach at Pitt Lake. Mr. Moresby and a party of constables are up at the lake on the trail. They have destroyed his canoe and surrounded the wood where they expect to find him. The Indians say he had committed murder before.

The Espiegle carried 25 tons of Canmore coal when she left Vancouver, which will be thoroughly tested during her present cruise to Comox. The vessel will be run for a few hours at a time, so that all the characteristics of the coal may be fully noted. The report of the experiment will be forwarded to the Admiralty office, London.

BEBE, COURT DWARF.

Queer Career of the Tom Thumb of the Last Century.

The Diminutive Creature Owned by King Stanislaus of Poland—Numerous Perils to Which the Little Fellow Was Exposed—His Last Days.

The story of Bebe is a quaint bit of last century's history, which has just been rescued from oblivion by a Continental Dryasdust. Bebe is supposed to have been the littlest man who ever lived, says the New York Sun. He was born of peasant parents in Lorraine just 150 years ago, and was called Bebe because the first few years of his life he could articulate only "b-b." The day of his birth Bebe was smaller than his mother's hand. Ten days afterward he was taken to the village church to be baptized in his mother's wooden shoe, because he was too tiny to be carried safely in her arms. During the next six months the same wooden shoe served as Bebe's crib.

Bebe's early childhood was uneventful. He did not grow and he did not talk. He was famous throughout Lorraine, however, as the cunningest and tiniest bit of humanity ever seen. He was perfectly proportioned, had wonderfully large and beautiful brown eyes, and was remarkably active upon his diminutive legs. When Bebe was about seven years old King Stanislaus Lesczynski of Poland, who was then living in Lorraine, heard what a wonderful little fellow he was, and ordered the child's father to bring him to court. Bebe, Sr., carried his son to the royal palace in a small basket.

At time of his introduction to court life Bebe was just twenty inches tall and weighed eight pounds. He never grew larger. At first the King tried to teach him jokes and fairy stories and bits of questionable poetry. Bebe's intelligence, however, was not equal to the demands thus made upon it. His memory was so weak that he forgot one hour what he had learned the hour before. Reading and writing were for him quite impossible. With all these failings, however, he was by no means a failure as a court dwarf. He had a sweet little voice, a good ear for music, and nimble legs. He could dance and and kick and sing with the best of the King's courtiers. He was very useful as a table ornament at all the King's great banquets. His most famous appearance in this rather curious role took place at a dinner which Stanislaus gave to the ambassador of a great power in 1755. In the middle of the table was an immense sugar castle. Shortly before the guests rose to leave, the door of the castle opened, and a knight in full armor stepped out with a drawn sword in his right hand. All the guests thought the knight must be some wonderful automaton which the King had obtained from the skilled mechanics across the Rhine. He wasn't, however. He was none other than little Bebe. He walked around the table, shook his sword in the face of every guest, saluted the King, and then turned back to the castle entrance, where he assumed the position of sentry. At a signal from the King every one at the table began to bombard him with small sugar balls. Bebe hurried at once into the castle, locked the door, mounted the tower, and pretended to return the fire by setting off a lot of perfumed explosives.

Within ten or twelve years after Bebe's appearance at court he was one of the most celebrated persons in royal society on the continent. With fame, however, came to him numerous perils. All the sovereigns of Europe were coveting him, and many of them tried hard to steal him. In 1758 the Empress Catherine, of Russia, sent an emissary after him to the court of the Polish King. Late one evening, when the royal palace was almost deserted, Catherine's emissary snapped Bebe up and stuffed him into the pocket of his great coat. Bebe screamed so lustily that he revealed the plot to the guard at the door. The emissary was arrested and Bebe was rescued. Not long afterward Bebe accompanied Stanislaus to the court of Louis XV. in Versailles, where he again narrowly escaped abduction. A lady of the French court had been holding him in her lap between the courses of a court dinner. Suddenly she rose to leave the room. Her first step was accompanied by a shrill cry from the folds of her gown: "Your Majesty, your Majesty, this lady has stuck me in her pocket, and is running away with me." The voice was Bebe's. He was immediately dragged from the court lady's pocket and placed under the guard of two pages, who were instructed by King Stanislaus to watch him day and night.

The perils through which he had passed, and the strict surveillance to which he was now subjected, depressed Bebe's spirits and demoralized his nervous system. He became melancholy, morose, round-shouldered and haggard. The King thought he needed a companion to cheer him up, and therefore married him with great pomp and ceremony to Therese Souvray, a dwarf of about his age and slightly greater stature. That was the last drop in Bebe's cup. Two weeks after his marriage he lost his mind. He ceased to talk entirely, ate little, and passed most of his time in his crib.

His honeymoon was hardly up when he died. Shortly before his death his clouded mind was cleared in a most remarkable manner. His memory, which had always been weak and after his marriage had vanished, sudddenly returned. He recollected all the incidents of his early childhood, his mother's face, which he had not seen for fifteen years, and all the songs which had been taught him since his advent to court. Bebe was just twenty-one years old when he died. His wife Therese survived him forty-two years.

Russian Remedy for Toothache.

A Russian practitioner recommends the use of hyoscyamus seeds for toothache. His plan is to burn the seeds and to convey the smoke through a little paper tube to the hole in the tooth. He declares that in nearly all cases one application, or at most two, will suffice to cure the toothache.

HOW THEY TAKE FOOD.

The Various Ways in Which Living Creatures Eat.

That peculiar echinoid, the sea-urchin, has five teeth in five jaws—one in each jaw—all the five immediately surrounding the stomach. The jaws have a peculiar centralized motion, all turning inward and downward so that they also act as feeders.

Snails have teeth on their tongues, hundreds of them, says the San Francisco Chronicle, but, as if these were not enough, some have them also in their stomach.

The cuttlefish, which, among other strange things, always walks with its head downward, does not chew its food at all, but masticates with its gizzard. So do geese, fowls, ducks, and indeed all modern birds. Seizing their food in their beaks they swallow it whole, if grain or seed, and in large pieces if it be fruit or bread. In that condition it goes into the gizzard, a powerful muscle with very tough, horny lining, which acts as a mill, being sufficiently powerful to pulverize uncooked corn. To assist in the milling process all grain-eating birds swallow little pieces of gravel, glass, crockery, metal, etc., the horny interior of the gizzard being sufficiently tough to escape cutting by these materials. It is because of this fact that the ostrich has acquired his reputation of enjoying a ferruginous diet.

Even when they had teeth birds only used them to take their food, depending upon the gizzard for mastication then as now.

Fishes and reptiles use their teeth for the same purpose, that of taking their food, but, like the birds, they gulp down their food unchewed, and unbroken if possible.

There are, however, exceptions. The ray, or skate, for instance, has a mouth set transversely across its head, the jaws working with a rolling motion like two hands set back to back. In the jaws are three rows of flat teeth, set like a mosaic pavement, and between these rolling jaws the fish crushes oysters and other mollusks like so many nuts.

The carp's teeth are set back on the pharynx, so that it may be literally said to masticate its food in its throat. The carp, too, is about the only cud-chewing fish, the coarsely swallowed food being forced up to these throat teeth for complete mastication.

Some fishes are absolutely toothless, like the sucker and lamprey; others again have hundreds and hundreds of teeth, sometimes so many that they cover all parts of the mouth.

The great Greenland whale has no teeth, its baleen plates, or whalebone, taking their place. Along the center of the palate runs a strong ridge, and on each side of this there is a wide depression, along which the plates are inserted.

While the Greenland whale has no teeth, the sperm whale has them in great quantities on the lower jaw, and uses them, too, when occasion requires. On the other hand, the narwhal very seldom develops more than one, the left upper canine. It makes up for the lack of number by the extraordinary growth attained by this one tooth. It grows out and right forward, on a line with the body, until it becomes a veritable tusk, sometimes reaching the length of ten feet. Apropos of tusks, the elephant's are its unduly developed upper incisors; those of the walrus are its upper canines, and so are those of the wild hog.

Man is the only animal that has teeth—incisors, canines and molars—of an equal height. Man, the ape, and nearly all ruminants, have thirty-two teeth. The hog, however, is better off than this, and has forty-four. So have the opossum and mole. The river dolphin of South America lays far beyond this, however, having no less than 222 teeth. Teeth are not part of the skeleton, but belong to the appendages, like skin and hair.

The sturgeon is toothless and draws in its food by suction, but the shark has hundreds of teeth set in rows that sometimes number ten.

Lobsters and crabs masticate their food with their horny jaws, but they have also sets of teeth in their stomachs, where they complete the work of chewing. But there is one peculiar kind of crab, called the king or horseshoe crab, which chews its food with its legs. This is an actual fact, the little animal grinding its morsels between its thighs before it passes them over to its mouth.

The jelly fish absorbs its food by wrapping itself around the object which it seeks to make its own. The starfish is even more accommodating. Fastening itself to the body it wishes to feed on, it turns its stomach inside out and enwraps its prey with this useful organ.

Dogs seize their food with their jaws, cats with their feet, and so do monkeys, some of them pressing their prehensile tails into service. The squirrel uses its paws to carry its food to its mouth, the elephant its trunk, the giraffe, anteater and toad their tongues.

Spiders chew their food with horny jaws, which are sharp enough to give quite a nip.

Grasshoppers and locusts are very well provided with the necessary machinery for eating much and often. They have saw-like jaws, and gizzards, too, the latter being fitted out with horny teeth.

The caterpillar feeds with two saw-edged jaws, working transversely, and uses them to such good advantage that he eats three or four times his own weight every day.

Toads, tortoises, turtles and most lizards have no teeth. Frogs have teeth in their upper jaw only. Anteaters, sloths and armadillos have no teeth.

The lion and the tiger, and, indeed, most of the carnivora, do not grind their food, using their jaws only up and down, the molars acting like chopping knives, or rather, scissors. Their mouths, in fact, are a veritable hash mill.

Strange and curious as some of these modes of feeding are, however, they none of them compare in simplicity and effectiveness with that practiced by the tapeworm. This creature has neither mouth nor stomach, but just lays along and absorbs the already digested food through its skin.

Doctors Disagree, as Usual.

"What's all this talk about finding the germ that produces consumption?" I asked a distinguished physician recently. "Dr. Fordyce Barker has come back from Europe full of it—not the germ, but the supposed discovery."

Then the M. D. Said unto me:

"When they begin to effect cures of consumption by their discovery, I shall be most ready to praise and credit. This very thing has been heralded broadcast many times before, but mostly in the shape of destroying the germ.

"If they can get at any inoculations that will destroy the fermentation that produces vinegar and other organic acids and the development of their yeasts, they will have accomplished the purpose, but I doubt very much whether they can put anything into the body—without killing the patient—that will check the acid fermentation. The best way is to stop putting in the foods that feed and produce these acid yeasts. This same thing was gone over years ago with 'hog cholera,' which is nothing but consumption of the bowels."—Kate Field's Washington.

AN AWFUL BLUNDER.

A Counter-Jumper Mistakes a Young Lady for a Wire Dummy.

A friend told me the following story, says the Brooklyn Citizen, which demonstrates the fact that it always pays to keep your eyes wide open, no matter how prompt you are compelled to be in attending to your business.

It was a rainy morning about two weeks ago. One of our large dry-goods establishments had placed on one side of its entrance a wire dummy with a rubber cloak thrown over it for the purpose of catching the eye of some of the female passers-by who did not possess a "McIntosh." The young man who had received orders to place the figure outside the door was a foreigner but a short time in the country. Pretty soon it cleared up and one of the cash-boys was told to bring it inside, which he did. In just about half an hour it dawned upon the young foreigner that he had forgotten something, and, making straight for the door, he proceeded to carry back the figure whence it came. It happened that a young lady of medium build stood upon the spot the dummy had occupied but a short time before. She had her back toward the window and was apparently waiting for a car. The young man rushed up to her, and throwing his arms about her waist, lifted her off her feet, and was about to hustle her into the store when a shrill shriek rent the air. The clerk was dumfounded. He blushed, turned pale, and goodness knows how many other colors, but was, nevertheless, conscious of the awful mistake he had made. The young lady was about to thrash him with an umbrella which she carried when one of the floor-walkers appeared upon the scene. In the meantime the young man kept begging the young lady's pardon. But she would not have it, and instead of accepting his apologies she sought a member of the firm, who, however, was able to settle the matter amicably. The young man was not discharged either, for his mistake was unintentional and perhaps natural in his hurry.

It has been discovered in New York State that in framing the anti-cigarette law the Legislature arranged for a mode of legal procedure in the trial of offences under which it will put the State to an expense of from twenty to fifty dollars for every fine of from two to ten dollars collected. The question now is, whether the legislators did this knowingly or simply blundered.

THE PLUCKY PECCARY.

How a Herd of the Animals Carried On a Hopeless War.

They tell us we do not half appreciate the pig, that he is really very clever, says Harper's Young People. We have made him stupid, they say, by overfeeding and no exercise, that we may eat him ourselves. In the Western part of our country some of the pig family are known as peccaries, and once when a train was coming they went out to meet it.

The engineer of a train one day saw a number of peccaries on the line, which, like American railroads generally, is not protected by fences, and naturally thought they would run away.

"In this, however, I was very much mistaken, for when they saw us they formed two or three lines, standing close together across the tracks. There was nothing to do but run through them, so I just put on a little more steam and we charged down on this battalion of peccaries. They never budged an inch and the train cut right through them, killing a large number of them. Those that were unhurt rushed madly at the cars as they flew past and many were cut up under the wheels.

"Coming back on the return train next day I was very much astonished to see those that were unhurt of the herd standing in the same place. As soon as they heard us coming they arranged themselves in battle array and we had to cut through them again, killing a large number. As we came up they became frantic, rushing at the cow-catcher and wheels, only to be killed.

"Next day they were there again, and the same tactics were gone through. This went on day after day, until only three were left. These three ranged themselves as the others had done, and we bore down upon them. I hated to kill these plucky little fellows, but I could not help it. Two of them were carried away on the cow-catcher, and the other made a rush at the cars, and the last of the tribe was killed."

A LILLIPUTIAN RAILWAY.

Nine Miles of Ten-inch Gauge Road in Massachusetts.

A wonderful railroad is the one which connects the towns of Bedford and Bellevue, Mass., says the Albany Argus. It is nine miles in length, and is probably as unique as any on the globe. The distance is not so astonishing, except when the gauge of ten inches is considered.

In the short distance traversed by the pigmy it crosses eleven streams, with bridges from five to thirty-five feet in height. The rails weigh but twenty pounds to the yard, about the size of those used in the mines of Missouri and Illinois. The cars and engines are constructed so as to be very near the ground, insuring greater safety. The cars are provided with single seats on each side of the aisle.

The car itself weighs but four tons, the weight of an ordinary car being twenty to twenty-six tons. The engine, without the tender, weighs seven tons, and runs with two passenger or freight cars at the rate of twenty miles an hour. There is a smaller railroad than this in the United States—the one in Bucks County, Pa.—but it is only kept as an expensive toy by a rich farmer who has made a fortune out of oil.

An Elephant's Self-Denial.

While in India Captain Marryat, the novelist, was intensely interested in the devotion and self-denial of a huge elephant. The beast was defending himself from swarms of mosquitoes, using a large branch to keep them from the crannies and cracks of his thick hide. His persecutors were still annoying him greatly, as was evident from his emotions, when his keeper appeared with a little child. This he laid down before the animal, saying: "Watch it," and walked away. The elephant immediately broke off a small whisk from the large bough and instead of fanning himself directed his attention to driving away every mosquito from the infant. He continued this until the keeper returned, two hours later, thus setting, though a brute, an example of devotion which few men would have imitated.

A CASE OF BLUFF.

How a Cool Man Won Twenty-Two Hundred Dollars at Poker.

A little game of draw played at one of the leading hotels in Denver has been a subject of interest to semi-sports lately, says the Chicago Times. The players were prominent men—one a leading and wealthy cattle-man of Colorado, whose figure has only recently assumed aldermanic proportions; one a Congressman from Georgia, and the third a scion of the cotton aristocracy of New Orleans. A three days' siege was agreed to. A room was engaged and office hours arranged. They were to begin playing at one o'clock in the afternoon and quit promptly at ten. Lunch was served in the room, and a new deck was to be used for each deal. The limit was placed at $100, but it was optional with any one of the trio to declare the limit off at any time. The first day's play resulted in favor of no one particularly, but the very first hand dealt on the second afternoon found two sets of threes and a four flush out. The blonde from New Orleans had three and knew what they were worth, so he opened her up for $100. The big fellow from Colorado had the same sort of a temper, and promptly knocked off the limit by depositing $500 worth of ivory on the table. Our Congressman with the anxious face looked solemn, but had not dreamed of any black cats, so he "saw" what was going on. In the draw Mr. N. did not improve things, but looked as expressive as a last year's base ball. The Colorado man made fours, and the Congressman got the right color and shape. One hundred [illegible] as a [illegible]. Mr. Long Horn made it an even $500. The Georgian thought an ace-flush good, and raised him $500 more. Mr. N. laid his cards down on the table.

"Is my paper good here?" [illegible]

"Certainly," was the reply.

In a moment more a check for $5,000 lay on the table. The silence was saddening. Cattle were not very high that year, and four ten-spots were quietly laid down. The Congressman from Georgia thought so, too, and his beautiful flush joined the discards. Mr. N. coolly raked in the $2,200 pot and passed his hand over to me. He had three duces.

A CHICKEN'S DEVOTION.

The Tragic End of a Faithful Houdan—Loyal Unto Death.

Many a time has the fickleness of human nature been put to the blush by the undying loyalty of a dog or a horse. But rarely has it occurred, we are sure, that a chicken has found itself unable to live without its master and has determined to commit suicide rather than live in loneliness. A correspondent of La Nature, a French scientific journal, tell the following tragic story of a chicken of the Houdan variety of which his brother had made a pet. He says:

"Every morning in coming out of the house the young man brought with him a handful of crumbs or of grain or of something else that chickens like, and little by little his Houdan pet acquired the habit of following him about the place. In a grove near the house there was a bench. When the young man reached this bench he invariably seated himself, and the fowl, jumping up by his side, pecked the food from his hand and was petted by being stroked on the head and back.

"This had gone on for quite a long time when the young man left home to go to college. For the first day or two the chicken seemed not to be inconsolable over the loss of its friend, but took its food with the rest. After a few days, however, the fowl seemed to become aware that its friend was not coming back, and it was seized all at once with an unconquerable melancholy. It lingered morning after morning under the windows of the house as if waiting for its master to come out.

"Finally it betook itself to the bench where its master had been accustomed to feed it, and there remained, its head under its wing, almost motionless, day and night. It was useless to try to tempt it with food; the chicken refused to look up when the most tempting handfuls of grain or dough were thrown down before it. Its eyelids were closed, and its intention to die of hunger was so evident that it was deemed merciful to kill it."

It has been calculated that in the twenty years from 1856 to 1876, Africa supplied Europe on an average with 1,500,000 pounds of ivory annually, besides 250,000 pounds imported to India, and 1[illegible],000 pounds to America, representing altogether at least 51,000 elephants. This enormous destruction of elephants is made to supply the civilized world with such things as billiard balls, umbrella handles and piano keys.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW,

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

THE ORGANS AND THE CHINESE.

The Tory organs are not in harmony on Sir JOHN'S recent utterances on the Chinese question. The Colonist, which rather prides itself upon being the chief Government oracle in British Columbia, dutifully re-echoes the sentiments of its leader and almost goes so far as to say that Chinese are such a desirable class that the present restrictions to their immigrations will have to be removed, in the interest of the country. The "universal brotherhood" feeling of its editor embraces for the time being all races and condition of men, and while the sentiment lasts we may expect our esteemed contemporary to strive earnestly and sincerely to undo the work which, in common with other papers, it assisted in having accomplished a few years ago. But the Vancouver Telegram, which we assume to be Tory, or Conservative, thinks differently to our pro-Chinese friend. It says:

"Our working men will be arrant fools if they allow themselves, with the franchise in their hands, to be crowded to the wall by a horde of coolies from China or any where else. Labor now occupies a dignified position on this continent. The working man is generally well paid, well lodged, well fed, and well clothed; and is treated with respect by all classes. He need not be ashamed to speak to the highest in the land. The highest offices are open to him and to his children, if only they prove themself worthy of them. The means of education are provided for all, and every man has a chance to rise, if he has the ambition and the ability to distinguish himself and push his way upwards. But that will soon be all altered if increasing crowds of Chinese cheap labor be permitted to enter Canada. The price of labor would soon fall to such a point that the working man here, as all over most of Europe, would soon find himself engaged in a life and death struggle for mere existence, without any leisure for self improvement, or the means to educate his children. * * * The Chinese can be excluded if our Government wish to do it, and the Imperial government will not stand in the way. What has been done in Australia can be done here. * * * The whole matter is in the hands of the working men themselves. Once let the Government be convinced that they must yield or lose the labor vote, and there will be no more talk of their want of power to do what is asked of them. They will find a way to do it. As matters stand at present, it is only too evident, we fear, that they will do nothing."

It is only too apparent that there is something behind Sir JOHN'S declarations that bodes no good to the working men of the Province. Does the Government intend to repeal the present law, which imposes a fifty dollar tax upon Chinese?

THE PARDONING POWER.

A full resume of the case, recently decided in Toronto, by which the power of pardoning persons convicted of offences under provincial prerogative, is given in another page. Although the point was caused by Mr. MOWAT, who is the great champion of provincial jurisdiction and authority, and the judgment given primarily affects only Ontario legislation, the judgment of the Ontario Court of Chancery has a Dominion-wide importance. It will affect every province alike.

The Ontario Legislature, in 1888, passed an act conferring upon the Lieutenant-Governor power "of commuting and remitting sentences for offences against the laws of that province or offences over which the legislative authority of the province extended." The Federal Government contended that the pardoning power was vested exclusively in the Governor-General, and therefore the act was ultra vires of the Ontario Legislature. A case was, consequently, submitted to the Court of Chancery and was argued last June, Mr. EDWARD BLAKE and ÆMILIUS IRVING appearing for the Province. The unanimous decision of the court is that the law is constitutional, and that, in respect to all penalties imposed ... provincial laws, the Lieutenant-Governor possesses the pardoning power. The Minister of Justice can carry an appeal to the Privy Council, and is very likely to do so, although most people will say that Sir JOHN'S Government ought by this time to have learned that the longer litigation is continued, the greater is the fall of the defeated side. A dozen great constitutional cases, in every one of which MOWAT was successful, bear testimony to the legal incapacity of the Ottawa Government.

NEWSPAPER READERS.

The observation has been made, and that in newspaper quarters, that newspapers, although containing treasures of knowledge, instead of "assisting men to a liberal education have a dissipating and destructive effect." "The newspaper," says this authority, "is usually taken up in an idle mood and scanned for those trifles which serve the purpose of the day's gossip, and which there is really no object in trying to remember, and as a consequence the memory declines its daily food and grows weaker and weaker." And, says our authority further, "had the journalist not good reason to know that things printed by him interest the bulk of readers almost in the inverse ratio of their importance, he would be less afraid to furnish instruction." There is a great deal of truth in this arraignment, if such it may be called. There is not only a great deal too much idle, listless reading which goes in at one ear and out at another, but there is a kind of reading which takes no pleasure except in the grossest sensationalism. But what is the cause of it? The cause, it may be said, is fundamental. A certain proportion of mankind have no aptitude for reading that is instructive. Theirs is a butterfly existence, they crave only to sip of the high-scented flowers of sensationalism and personal gossip. For events which create epochs they have no regard. Like sanitary officers, they have no interest for that which concerns them most. So numerous is this class of readers that the daily press, in deference to them, have all but abandoned the functions of dispensers of knowledge per se for that of chroniclers of trivialities. Retailers of gossip, have they become the medium through which people ascertain each others movements and whereabouts. Nor in respect to editorial utterances have we a much more satisfactory condition of things. We have in the editorial column a baldness of statement, owing to the necessity of brevity, which already has been anticipated by the well read person, while to the unread it is either mystifying, or what is just as bad—inconclusive. Col. PRIOR suddenly concludes that C Battery should live in tents, and makes a long speech in support of that view; THOS. EARLE declares himself opposed to the principle, "a generous but independent support of the Government," and gives his reasons therefor in a lengthy harangue; "Honest JOHN" announces himself "responsible" for the sending of troops to Wellington, and defends his course in a longitudinal statement of the causes which led up to that rash act. These several statements have not been published in full. The general public has not been made acquainted with all the reasons which led these gentlemen to repudiate their records and to turn over a new leaf in their political history. The able editor, however, passes the actions of these men in review, negatively or affirmatively as the case may be, and comments on the probable effect their respective changes of opinion will have on the country, and he compresses it all into half or three quarters of a column: What have we here? Have we anything conclusive to the person who is not already acquainted with the facts? What is an editor's opinion worth which is not supported by evidence to those who have not previously acquainted themselves with the evidence? Column after column of what is essentially bald statement editorial writers turn off on subjects which fifty per cent of their readers are ignorant of. Is it any wonder that these subjects fail to interest, and that conviction still stands aloof? Of course the reader who has faith in his editor is able to swallow his oracular lucubations. If he believes in him he accepts him as he does his Bible. To illustrate further our meaning, for we wish to make ourselves thoroughly understood, an article appears in the Nineteenth Century over the signature of the Attorney-General, explaining why he stood for Cowichan. The article has not been generally read. Not everybody takes the Nineteenth Century. The able editor, however, has seen the article, and he sums up in half a column his opinion of it. How about the reception of an article in which the editor endeavors to make clear in half a column what should occupy a column and a half? Is it not Greek to those who have not read the Nineteenth Century, and is it not voted a bore? It will be urged, perhaps, that in the event of such an article appearing it would probably carry its own condemnation with it, and that consequently the editor would have no need to discuss it. True, doubtless, this would be of it, but we must make use of somebody in drawing our illustrations. Thus it comes about that in the very nature of things the daily press is not a magazine of pure knowledge, and we should not complain if it does not seem to fill its alleged high mission. But there is this about the daily press, it is a stimulant. The same curiosity which prompts a man who has read the Attorney-General's article in the Nineteenth Century to turn to his paper to ascertain its opinion in the matter also prompts the man who has not read the article to fortify himself against possible editorial bias by reading the article as originally put by the author. In the recent duel between GLADSTONE and BLAINE re free trade editorial comment stimulated curiosity, and the articles were read by thousands who otherwise would not have heard of them. To the "able editor" it is a dismal reflection that after having ground out an article the concentrated essence of wisdom, or after having carefully scissored one which should impinge on the susceptibilities of the reader, it is received with incredulity, or perhaps ignored for the ephemera of the reporter. Such is one of the phases of daily journalism, however. The "wretched reporter" has his revenge on the "inside office." Nevertheless in the aggregate the daily press wields a tremendous influence. The general reader may not treasure up in his mind the names and dates of events nor yet be able to recall editorial utterance as he read it, but some one among the mass of things, that are said is sure to leave a lasting impress. The reader cannot escape it. To-day, to-morrow, the next day, months may elapse before the reader is touched; but even as in an opera some strain in it finds a sympathetic chord so does the ceaseless grind of the press finally evolve the idea which carries conviction with it. As to those who cannot be touched it matters but little. They do not control events; they drift. They follow in the wake of those who read and ponder. In people of this sort there is no harm except in so far as they may be influenced by the appeals of those who acquire knowledge to facilitate selfish ends.

SEWERAGE.

The ratepayers of Victoria one day this week will be required to pass upon the question of sewerage, and, it is to be hoped, they will see their way clear to give their assent to it. This city has stunk long enough. On nearly every street where there are drains foul smells arise, and the city this summer could not have escaped the contagion of fever had not the sun's rays been tempered by fresh sea breezes. But even though we have a disinfectant in sea breezes, it cannot always prove so. So soon as the soil is once completely saturated with refuse—and that condition is now about reached—all the sea breezes that may blow cannot save us the ravages of some mortal epidemic. There is, however, another phase to the question, and that is that though health did not require cleanliness we should have a decent regard for the sense of smell. Why should our noses be constantly offended with nauseous stenches? Why should the soil be permitted to become fœtid that a dollar or two may be saved? As between taxation and stench which is the least desirable? This city has gone too long undrained both from a sanitary and from an esthetic point of view. Parsimony has intervened where a wise liberality should have been employed, and sickening smells on some of our most popular thoroughfares are the consequence.

We hope that the ratepayers will support the measures now before them. They owe it to themselves, their families and finally to the future of the city itself. The status quo continued the press cannot conscientiously call attention to Victoria as the choice of Pacific coast cities as a healthful place of residence.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There is force in the remark of the Ottawa Government organ that, in view of the fate of the SHERMAN resolution, any further lecturing of Canada by agitators is absurd till they have overcome the antagonism of the United States to closer trade relations with the Dominion.

The British agricultural representatives at present in Canada are Mr. GEORGE BROWN, of Caithness, representing the North of Scotland; Mr. E. R. MURPHY, of Tralee, representing the South of Ireland; Mr. W. EDWARDS, Ruthin, representing North Wales; Colonel FANE, representing Lincolnshire; Mr. ARTHUR DANIELS, Norfolk and Suffolk; and Mr. HUTCHINSON, from the North of England. Others are to follow.

A new order issued by the Treasury Department at Washington is an additional restraint on trade between the two countries. This order is that all goods bonded going to Canada must be corded and sealed. In effect the United States customs place a cord around each package and affix the custom seal thereon, making a charge of ten cents a package. Formerly this was done to the railway cars only, importers state that if this regulation is enforced the charges will equal the freight charges.

The Halifax Club has twice blackballed the Hon. J. W. LONGLEY, the Attorney-General of Nova Scotia. Mr. LONGLEY'S is probably the brightest mind in Nova Scotia, and as a member the gifted attorney-general would add an eclat to the club which it has never possessed. Mr. LONGLEY will very probably try again. He will, no doubt, have heard of the Attorney-General of British Columbia, who was blackballed several times by the Union Club of Victoria, and whose try-try-again policy eventually gained him admission into the charmed circle, where his intellectual and social qualities are now very highly appreciated. The action of clubs, through the ballot box, is sometimes supremely silly.

DO THE PEOPLE RULE?

The question invariably is raised nowadays in re of a fiscal question, "Will it meet the approval of the manufacturers and of other capitalized interests?" What does this mean? Why should not the question be asked, instead, "Will it meet the approval of the people?" Are capitalized interests the people? Does the prosperity of the country hinge wholly on the prosperity of such institutions that politicians should defer to them when a question of State policy arises? It would appear so. These institutions with the average politician are the people. Take care of these institutions, and the people will take care of themselves. Now, in this presentment we have no animus against capital. We recognize its inseparability from the development of the resources of the country; capital should not only be encouraged but protected. But when the newspapers and the politicians ask how certain capitalized interests will stand affected to a certain line of policy, what must we assume to be the actual condition of things? Shall we not assume that capital and not the people is shaping the destiny of the country, or in other words, that Plutocracy rules? But how does this come about? Plutocracy is in the minority. We are now coming to the point. Plutocracy has the "sinews of war," and the people are venal. It is a fact and it was demonstrated in the recent presidential election in the States—and we have more recent instances of the same kind in Canada—that as capital goes so go the elections. It may be that this is all right; that capital knows what is best not only for itself but for the people; but the fact remains just the same that the ulterior object in deferring to capital in the matter of fiscal questions is to make sure of the electorate. What an aggregation of rogues we are! To come down to specific statements of fact in the matter of bribery, and as illustrative of the deference paid to capital by politicians, we quote from the Montreal Witness, an organ not given to exaggeration. This in the matter of how elections are carried in Quebec. The Witness quoting the Empire, says:

"The modus operandi appears to have been as follows: A railway contractor or company, as the case may be, would be expecting a considerable subsidy from the province on works, on hand or in contemplation, and on the eve of the late contest dozens of these men were approached as follows: 'Give us five, ten, twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars, and of course your letter of credit or subsidy will be all OK, as soon as the elections are over.'

It is needless to add that the majority of these men came down handsomely, and the desired fund was, as before intimated in the Empire, of the most extensive proportions; but, as has already been stated, these advances were made upon the understanding that the province would make them good at the proper time and place, and it is now for the people to estimate how many millions will be required to satisfy the enormous claims which the different corporations referred to above will have upon the treasury of the province."

The Witness, in commenting on this state of affairs, "asks the Empire in all honesty where there is anything to be said in favor of Sir JOHN MACDONALD, who inaugurated this system, and who still lives by it. He calls the manufacturers for whom his Government has secured privileges together and says to them: "See, I have created these valuable privileges for you, and I am attacked for it. My opponents oppose them, and, if successful, will sweep them away, while the policy of my administration is to increase them. Now, do you not think you should subscribe funds liberally to support my policy by which you so greatly profit?"

This, however, is not the point we wish to make. Sir JOHN's methods are a chestnut. He is no longer expected to deal on the square. What we wish to say is, would it not be just as well to turn over the Government to somebody and let them run it as does the Czar or the King of Dahomey. It would be far cheaper; it would save the expense of elections, at least. If the ultimate of things is the subversion of constitutional government, why not anticipate it and save expense? Why keep up the farce of constitutional forms, when really, barring Siberia and the police, we are no better off than Russia? Talk about men governing themselves! The base purposes to which men habitually lend themselves, suggests more strongly than anything else their animal origin, and the likelihood that even the devil himself will spurn them as too morally debased for the infernal regions.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Vancouver World says that one of its articles has brought it "many warm compliments."

The delegation of labor representatives that waited upon Sir JOHN last week—we learn from a Winnipeg paper—asked that all Chinese be excluded from the country on grounds of morality, and failing their complete restriction that $500 penalty be imposed on mine owners who employ Chinamen in mines.

The Vancouver organ of the Government is stirred to the profoundest depth of its editor's mind on the question of a site for the University. Hear it rave:

"Victoria is about to offer a site for the University. Does that ambitious burgh imagine that a seat of learning which is for all the people, and which should be located where the bulk of the people are—to say nothing at all of the possibilities of the future—will be permitted to go to a faraway island which already has gobbled up pretty nearly everything that is going? We will be prepared very shortly to offer a site, too, much more valuable and much more suited to the required purposes than any that can be found in the vicinity of Victoria. On this quertion the Mainland is a unit, and will demand that it will receive some scant measure of justice. There seems as yet to be something hazy under the Act, as to where the power to locate the University lies, but any movement to steal it away from the Mainland will be watched very closely and as quickly checkmated."

The eloquent description of some of the attractions of the mountain scenery of Canada which Mr. RANKIN DAWSON has sent to the Times will materially assist in bringing home to many Britishers the marvellous extent, variety and beauty of the new region which the Canadian Pacific Railway has opened up. Here is one characteristic passage from the letter:

"The fourth of the company's hotels at North Bend is welcomed at first as the breakfasting place for the day, but is remembered later as being connected with the canyon of the Fraser River, the last and most wonderful of the mighty clefts cut through these mountain ranges. The mountains here are not so high, rugged and abrupt as are those of the Selkirk range, and much less snow is deposited on their summits. But if the mountains do not equal those already described, the valleys, and especially the marvellous canyon through which the railway is carried—far surpass anything of the kind seen before. Above, the steep bank rises, almost shutting out the sky; below the river swirls and surges; and far away on the other side of the gorge, a thousand feet above the dark water, the old wagon road, the predecessor of the railway, seems to cling like a fly to the steep rocky wall. Now we hurry across a dizzy bridge hung high above the boiling torrent, now plunge into a dark tunnel, or creep along a narrow ledge suspended in mid air. Far below on some rocky point is seen the patient Indian toiling with his great scoop net, and near him the salmon he has succeeded in catching by this primitive method are hung up to dry and smoke; or perhaps it is the industrious Chinaman swinging his cradle on some bar of river sand, and searching for the grains of gold which the heedless river has thrown up here. The more we see of this canyon the grander does it appear. Words fail to describe its majesty; one must see in order to appreciate its desolate and awe-inspiring grandeur.

HENRY GEORGE'S PROGRESS.

Twelve Years Ago He Went to New York Poor and Unknown.

Whether Mr. George's theories ever do more than afford men an opportunity for abstract speculation and for stimulating arguments or not, they have certainly done a vast deal for Henry George. I remember well when he came to this city some twelve years ago, unheralded and unknown, excepting to a few men who are constantly on the lookout for all that is intellectually new. Mr. Charles A. Dana, and his then chief of staff, John Swinton, had been attracted to Mr. George, mainly because of the originality and audacity which they had discovered in his book. The late Cortland Palmer, the socialist in theory and the wealthy aristocrat in fact, also sought him out when he came to this city. They found a man whose prepossessions were all inside his skull, for he was diffident to a fault, insignificant in size, and the last person one would have selected, to judge by physical appearances, who would write a book which fired hot shots at the accepted canons of political economy.

Mr. George had a hard struggle when he first came to New York. He was so poor that he was called upon to pay not even a single tax, having no property upon which any tax whatever could be demanded. Obscure, timid, and blessed with none of the outward mannerisms which charm men, yet within six years he had achieved what many men labor year in and year out to obtain without success, and that is fame, the repute of being the man most talked about in New York city, the candidate for its chief magistracy, who missed obtaining that chair by the narrowest of chances, and who, furthermore, has established himself in pecuniary prosperity, and is regarded as one of the men of authority in the great city. It was a sheer triumph of intellect, misdirected and false in action though it may be.

There are those who believe that Mr. George's career is scarcely yet begun, and there is little doubt that he himself is of that opinion. The calling of the national convention of single tax supporters, which is to serve as a greeting to him on his return next week, is the indication of an aggressive and persistent purpose on the part of those who have been converted by his writings. Mr. George is no longer an experiment or a skyrocket, but must be accepted as a fact to be duly weighed and considered by those who are considering the problems of the day.—Philadelphia Press.

EMIN'S GRAVE CHARGE.

His Troubles with Stanley as Revealed by Dr. Peters.

A dispatch from London says: The latest development of the Stanley-Emin quarrel, with the supposed light thrown on it by Dr. Peters, is exciting a good deal of discussion in London, and pretty much everybody who has expressed any opinion in the matter is standing up for Stanley. It is taken for granted that Dr. Peters' remarks at Munchen were intentionally pro-German and anti-English in tone, and this fact somewhat discounts his utterances. At the same time all that he says may be true, and we have not sufficient information at hand concerning the present condition of Uganda and the latest predominant phase of opinion in that much belied country to form a really sound judgment on the tricky German explorer's statements. That King Manga declines British protection, and intends to keep the control of his realm in his own hands and welcome all white men to trade in it, is reasonable and possible. That he should give his preference, if to any nation, to Germany, is only evidence that he said that to Dr. Peters, or that the last clever white man who has his ear has his influence. A more serious statement is that Emin authorized him to state formally that he consented to desert his equatorial province only on the direct command of the Khedive and under Stanley's threat that he would take him away by force if necessary. Peters says that Emin said that he could not endure the idea of fighting whites, himself a white man, in the presence of the natives of equatorial Africa, whom he had taught to look upon the white man as something great and indivisible. Stanley, on his part, in an interview just published, denies wholesale these and other charges relating to his behavior at Wadelae, and blames Wissmann's craft and diplomacy for turning Emin's affection and confidence from Stanley and the English people and making him suddenly an enemy of his friends. This began, says Stanley, with a letter received by Emin Pasha from Baron Wissmann before the rescuing party reached the coast, and continued while the German officer had Emin's ear during the latter's illness, caused by his fall. Stanley accuses Wissmann of wilful misrepresentation, and it is difficult to tell precisely what the truth is.

The point which Dr. Peters makes about Emin avoiding a contention between white men has won cordial endorsement here from the men acquainted with Africa. They hold that nothing is more injurious to the success of government and permanent civilization in the dark continent than the lack of harmony among the white men, and especially open disagreement. Stanley himself has often expressed this conviction, and it is not believed here that he would have run the risk of an open quarrel with Emin at Waldelae. Considerable doubt is felt as to the accuracy of Emin's story, although Peters is accredited with having reported him correctly, even if with a bias of emphasis on the German side of the question. The report from Zanzibar is also believed, that Emin warned Tippoo Tib to steer clear of the English, thus trying to destroy his friendly understanding with Mr. Stanley.

THE PARDONING POWER.

AN IMPORTANT JUDGMENT FOR THE PROVINCES.

Another Victory for Mr. Mowat and Provincial Rights—A Full Abstract of the Judgment—The Court of Chancery Unanimous in the Matter.

Judgment was given at Osgoode Hall Toronto, on Saturday, 6th inst., by the Chancery Divisional Court in the important constitutional case of the Attorney-General for Canada vs. the Attorney-General for Ontario. The case came before the court on a demurrer by the defendant to the statement of claim in an action brought under section 52, sub-section 2, of the Judicature Act R. S. O., chapter 44. "The High Court shall have jurisdiction to entertain an action at the instance of either the Attorney-General for the Dominion or the Attorney-General of this Province, for a declaration as to the validity of any statute or any provision in any statute of this Legislature, though no further relief should be prayed or sought; and the action shall be deemed sufficiently constituted if the two officers aforesaid are parties thereto. A judgment in the action shall be appealable like other judgments of the said court."

WHY THE ACTION WAS BROUGHT.

The action was brought for a declaration that the Ontario Act, Vic., Chap. 5, is ultra vires, invalid and of no effect and the effect of the demurrer, as agreed by counsel, was to join an issue of law upon the statement of claim. The Act in question is entitled "An Act Respecting the Executive Administration of Laws of this Province," enacting (1) the matters within the jurisdiction of the Legislature of the Province, all powers, authorities and functions, which, in respect of like matters, were vested in or exercisable by the Governors or Lieutenant-Governors of the several Provinces now forming part of the Dominion of Canada or any of the said Provinces, under commissions, instructions or otherwise, at or before the passing of the said Act are or shall be (so far as this Legislature has power to enact) vested in and exercisable by the Lieutenant-Governor or administrator for the time being of this Province, in the name of Her Majesty or otherwise as the case may require; subject always to the royal prerogative, as heretofore. (2) The preceding sections shall be deemed to include the power of commuting and remitting sentences for offences against the laws of the Province, or offences over which the legislative authority of the Province extends. The preamble to the act recites section 65 of the B. N. A. Act and section 92, sub-section 15 is also important. It is as follows:—"The imposition of punishment by fine, penalty or imprisonment for enforcing any law of the Province made in relation to any matter coming within any of the classes of subjects enumerated in this section."

THE DOMINION'S CONTENTIONS.

It was argued for the plaintiff that the Ontario Legislature had no power to enact the specific matter in the second section; that the power to commute and remit sentences is a part of the prerogative of the Crown and is always exercised directly by the Crown, and is a power which the Lieutenant-Governor does not possess, and which the Legislature cannot give to him or any other person; that the prerogative of the Crown extends to all offences, not only to crimes, but to matters made penal by Provincial statutes; that the prerogative power is single and indivisible; that it cannot be encroached upon without express words of the Imperial Legislature; the words must be clear or the inference must be irresistible; and that the language of the B. N. A. Act does not confer this power upon the Ontario Legislature. Counsel for the defendant argued that the powers given by the act are so qualified that it cannot be said that the act is generally ultra vires, although some special exercise of power might be deemed ultra vires; that the measure of the executive power is co-extensive with that of the legislative power; that many sovereign powers, such as taxation and the appointment of her Majesty's judges (e.g., Division Court judges and justices of peace), are within the competence of the Provincial Executive, and an analysis of the British North America Act shows that much of the sovereign power is delegated to the Provincial Executive; that the Provincial Legislatures have functions equal to those of the Dominion Legislature, and their powers in relation to the subjects over which they have jurisdiction are absolute; that there can be no objection to the conferring of powers upon the Lieutenant-Governor, who is a Federal officer and the representative of the Governor-General.

THE CHANCELLOR'S BRILLIANT JUDGMENT.

The judgment of the court in favor of the constitutionality of the Ontario Act was delivered by Mr. Chancellor Boyd who said:—

The validity of Provincial legislation depends upon its being constitutional, using that word in a strict sense, namely, whether as the expression of the will of an inferior political assembly the given law transcends or is within the compass of delegated power. In relation to the supreme authority of the British Parliament, Canada in its composite character forms a complete and separate subordinate Government possessing a "central Legislature" for the whole Dominion and "local Legislatures" for the several members of the colonial union. These various Legislatures hold in sub-division among other powers applicable to all classes of subjects and to every purpose of Government required for the entire territory and its several Provincial parts; but as between the Dominion and the Provinces each is an incomplete or limited Government having exclusive jurisdiction over certain enumerated classes of subjects defined in general terms by the Imperial Constitutional Act. Barring, however, this delimitation of area, the Parliament of the Dominion and the Legislature of the Province enjoy each in its own sphere and territory delegations of sovereign powers sufficient for all purposes of effective self-government. . . . It was urged that the 65th section (of the B. N. A. Act) permits the Province to work changes in the powers, etc., annexed to the executive office only by abolition or alteration, and not by addition.

THE IMPERIAL ACT.

The Imperial Act speaks of statutory powers, and the right is recognized to deal with and modify all prior colonial but not Imperial legislation on the subject. No restriction appears to be imposed or intended on the freedom of local legislation in attaching further proper powers and functions to the office of the Lieutenant-Governor, provided only that it does not transcend the limits of legislation assigned to the Province. . . . As to all subordinate law-making, it is a general principle not without point as to this phase of the discussion that though such laws may be praeter the general law of the realm, they cannot be contra. But even in rigorous construction "to alter" would include "to add." . . . No change is here attempted in the [illegible] but rather, important and congruous functions are sought to be added thereto, to be administered by that chief public office by whom through the Dominion the Province is connected with the Queen.

In the political aspect it is a fitting thing, if permissible, to bestow this dispensing power upon the chief executive of the body wherefrom the legislation that is sought to be arrested emanates. . . . According to the British Constitution pardons may proceed from the Crown by virtue of its prerogative, or from Parliament, the more comprehensive body, in the exercise of its supreme authority. The pardoning power as exercised by the Crown has certain legal limitations. . . . But in the "omnipotence of Parliament" dispensations may be granted by statute, general or special, which are all embracing in their effects, exempting from punishment not only as to the public but as to sections of the community and as to individuals peculiarly aggrieved.

A WELL-SETTLED PRINCIPLE.

Now, it is a well-settled principle of public law that after a colony has received legislative institutions the Crown (subject to the special provisions of any act of Parliament) stands in the same relation to that colony as it does to the United Kingdom. Re Bishop of Natal, 3 Moo. P. C.C., N.S. 148. Colonial legislation as to pardon may be attributed to the fact that the Crown is constituted of the local law-making body; but it is contended such is not the case as to Ontario; though as compared with the Dominion the mechanism may be different, and no direct or immediately representative co-ordination of Queen and people may exist in the Provincial Assembly, yet sovereign power must substantially operate and be manifested in Ontario legislation in order to the efficient exercise of territorial government under the sanctions of the Imperial act. The power to pass laws implies necessarily the power to execute or to suspend the execution of these laws, else the convenience of self-government in domestic affairs is a delusion. Sovereign power is a unity, and though distributed in different channels and under different names it must be politically and organically identical throughout the empire. Every act of Government involves some output of prerogative power. The prerogatives of the Crown may not have been in any sense communicated to the Lieutenant-Governor as representative of the Queen and yet the delegation of law-making and other sovereign powers by the Imperial Parliament to the Legislature of Ontario may suffice to enable that body by a deposit of power to clothe the chief Provincial functionary with all needful commuting and dispensing capacity in order to complete its system of government. That this "quality of mercy" is an indispensable constituent to human Governments nearly all publicists acknowledge.

Again, the persons affected by breaches of the penal law of the Province are, at the widest, the public not of Canada but of Ontario.

A MATTER OF LOCAL MOMENT.

The exemption from punishment is therefore a matter of local and private moment. It is a transaction which concerns solely the people of the Province and as to which responsibility should rest somewhere for the satisfaction of those affected by interruption of the usual course of law. . . . The royal prerogative, in its large sense as exercisable in reference to crime, the statute does not purport to interfere with. In many, if not in most, cases where it may be invoked the punishment will be such that the dispensing power of the Crown could not properly extend thereto. The argument pressed upon us was that nothing in sec. 92 of the Imperial statute contemplated legislation in reference to the pardoning power in any case or in any sense, however restricted. But this is, I venture to think, resting on the letter of the law and disregarding the liberal constitutional statute conferring and distributing high and large powers of government, both as to Canada and the Provinces. . . . The executive is made accountable to the electorate. Power and responsibility go hand in hand. The advisers of the Crown through whom the General and the Provincial Governments are conducted must answer for their advice to the popular assembly and ultimately to the people at large as organized for political purposes. All legislation which advances this end, having regard to the distribution of powers under the Imperial act, is constitutional and legally unexceptional. Holding in view these and other considerations already advanced or alluded to, I find no difficulty in classifying this statute as one made in relation to the imposition of punishment.

From another point of approach it may be covered by the provision for the administration of justice in the Provinces. The novel questions presented on this record and the earnest arguments addressed to us for and against the legislative capacity of the Province and manifested in this instance have induced me to give at length the reasons which have led to the irresistible conclusion that the statute 51 Vic., ch. 5, should be declared of the constitutional competence of Ontario.

Judges Ferguson and Robertson verbally stated their full concurrence in the opinion of the chancellor.

DAIRYING.

Interesting Lecture by a Thoroughly Practical Man.

The lecture by Professor J. W. Robertson, Dominion dairy commissioner, at the Philharmonic Hall, was, as expected by those who have previously heard the lecturer, a highly interesting and entertaining one.

The professor is evidently much surprised at the capabilities of this province in the way of fruit growing and farming generally, having, apparently, been considerably under the impression like a great number of visitors, that there is no land fitted for agriculture or horticulture; and in the course of his lecture gives some very interesting hints as to the culture of fruits and the varieties best adapted to the climate.

But it is to the subject of dairying proper that the professor devotes his chief energies, and in the handling of the matter from beginning to end, whether it be as to the best method of building silos or the making of gilt-edged butter, Mr. Robertson is a perfect master, and has the happy facility of being able to impress his views upon his audience and instilling upon them the impress of his own earnest and practical spirit.

Occasional visits such as the one just being paid to this province by Professor Robertson cannot fail to be of great importance to the farming population, in educing an emulation that should bear fruit at our annual exhibitions.

FOR ANOTHER WEEK.

The Allan Case Laid Over for Another Week.

When the case of jailer W. P. Allan, charged with shooting a jail breaker, came up this morning, Mr. Bodwell representing the Attorney-General, the prosecution asked for another week's remand as the Indian was not yet well enough to come to court.

W. J. Taylor, for the defence, objected to another remand as he said the prosecution had had four adjournments already. Mr. Allan had duties to attend to which he had to neglect to come to court. He thought if the Indian was well enough to be taken from the hospital a month ago he must be well enough to come back now as all statements went to show that he was improving. He asked that the case be dismissed, as the prosecution had not yet produced a particle of evidence and still the defendant was held with this case hanging over his head. Mr. Richards, he said, had promised to dismiss the case if the prosecution were not ready this week. His honor, however, remanded the case for another week which everybody in court and those who take an interest in the case thought an injustice to Mr. Allan and some thought that the Hon. Theo. Davie, the Attorney-General, should at least take a little interest in a case that he brought up.

INTERIOR ITEMS.

Collated from the Inland Sentinel—News of the Mountain Men.

Reports of very heavy crops of grain come from Spallumacheen. Schubert Bros., of Lansdowne, threshed last week 150 tons of grain, and Mr. Swanson even a greater amount. The harvest throughout the valley is phenomenally good.

Mr. R. H. Lee returned Thursday night from the Lower Kootenay country, where he was engaged in surveying some timber properties. The mining boom still continues, he says, and prospects are very encouraging.

Mr. M. Morrison, who is superintending the boring for an artesian well at Mr. Martin's ranch, was in town Friday morning. He says the well is down 300 feet now. Water has been reached but not in any flow.

During the past week a number of men have been engaged in re-grading the racetrack in the Caledonian Society's grounds, for the exhibition races on October 10th and 11th.

The body of Roderick McLeod, commonly called "Roary," was found lying in a tributary of Cherry Creek, about a mile from Hall Bros. ranch, fourteen miles from town, on Monday last, life having been extinct for over a week it is supposed. The deceased was 69 years of age, a native of the Island of Lewis, and came to Colville with Angus McDonald twenty years ago. He moved to Kamloops in 1878, to work for the Hudson Bay Company, from which time he has been variously employed by others. He was always of a roving disposition and fond of drinking. He has no relatives in the country and no possessions save a couple of horses.

An Indian named Spuzzum Albert was killed on the track near Spuzzum on Monday morning, being run over by a freight train. The Indian had been drinking, it is supposed, and went to sleep on the track. Coroner Clarke was notified of the death, and held an inquest at Spuzzum, the jury returning a verdict in accordance with the above facts. Indian Agent McKay will make an investigation to ascertain who supplied the Indian with liquor.

Mr. N. Lee, some years ago employed in the Hudson Bay Co.'s store here, now engaged with Mr. H. P. Bailiff, in running a stock ranch in the Chilcoten country, spent several days in town this week renewing acquaintances. Mr. Lee says the stock in the Chilcoten country are in fine condition, and no doubt will winter well, as there will be plenty of grass on the ranges. Hay, cereals and roots are all good crops, owing to the generous rains during the summer. With regard to the roads in that district, Mr. Lee states that while the Government is doing some good work, the residents in Chilcoten Valley are obliged to go around by Soda Creek when travelling to Clinton or Ashcroft, when, with comparatively little cost, a road could be built from Hancoville to Dog Creek or Canoe Creek, making a saving of 80 miles each way, thereby greatly conveniencing a large number of settlers.

An Excellent Investment.

A lot 60x120, in a favorable residence locality, has been placed in our hands for sale. One of the best bargains ever offered. Apply to W. R. Higgins & Co., White House block. 21.

SEVERAL ADJOURNMENTS.

Lots of Cases Come Up But Few Are Disposed of.

A long list of cases came up in the police court this morning, but several had to to be remanded, as Hon. A. N. Richards, the police magistrate, before whom the cases were first called, was absent, and his place was taken by Judge Harrison and E. Johnson, S. M. Two drunks were first disposed of in the usual way, and then more interesting or unusual cases came up.

Peter Hansen, the scavenger, was the first called, and pleaded not guilty to hauling garbage through the streets during the day, but it was proved that he caused it to be hauled, and a fine of Peter Hans, a well known individual, was up for stealing $20, but it was clearly proved that he never had such an intention, and the case was dismissed. From what can be learned it appears that a man gave Peter $20 to change, and he being away a little too long with the money, he had him arrested.

P. Arey, an idle person whom the police have been watching for some time, and whom they wished to get rid of, was summoned to appear to-day, but as he did not show up, he has probably gone to the land of the free.

A person who can understand a Chinese case would do well to attend the police court to-morrow, as that everlasting case was again remanded. There seems to be something very deep in this Chinese case as the prosecution were at first only proceeding against one prisoner until the defence pulled them up and got them to arrest the other man, who as soon as he heard that he was wanted gave himself up.

Another case, which has been on the books for about a month, is that of A. W. Dunsmuir, charged with allowing a nuisance to remain on a lot belonging to him, but in spite of the number of adjournments the case was again laid over for another week.

Wm. Kelly, a longshoreman, was charged by Jas. Morrison with using threatening language to him. It seems that Morrison was working for less than Kelly was striking for, and the latter proposed a thrashing for Morrison. The case, however, will be ventilated to-morrow.

Now Ready.

To-day there arrived the first consignment of fall goods for gentleman's clothing. They comprise a well selected stock of Scotch, French, and German goods in the latest patterns, and will be made up at reasonable figures, in a first class manner, by J. McCallum, 43 Fort street.

Produce Your Proof.

The following false statement appears in the Vancouver World of Saturday: "We are in a position to state and can produce the proof, if necessary, that the habit is a perpetual one with certain Victorians of frightening capitalists from investing in this city or even visiting the coming modern Tyre of the Pacific."

We have been requested by several influential Victorians to ask the World to produce its proof. If the statement cannot be backed up with evidence it ought to be withdrawn.

Beautiful Women.

The magical efforts of Wisdom's Robertine as a beautifer and preserver of the complexion have been attested by thousands of leading ladies of society and the stage. It is the only article ever discovered which gives a natural and beautiful tint to the complexion, removing tan, sunburn, freckles and all roughness of the face and arms, leaving the skin soft, smooth and velvety. All remarks on its delightfuly cooling and refreshing properties, a distinction not found in any other similar article known. D. E. Campbell, agent.

At The Park.

The weather was a little chilly yesterday, but, nevertheless, a larger crowd than ever were out at the hill to listen to the music discoursed by C Battery Band.

It did not take the city council long to get tired of watering the roads on Saturday evening so that the dust would not fly on Sunday, spoiling the ladies' dresses and making it disagreeable around the band-stand.

Saturday was a quiet day at the hill, everybody evidently being at the driving park.

The trees donated by Mr. Jos. Heywood, which are growing in bunches, waiting for transplanting, look as though a little water once in a while would not hurt them. It will be a pity if the city lets them die, for there are some fine specimens among them.

The Stenhouse Family.

It may not be generally known that that the late member for Comox, in the Legislature, is descended collaterally from Alexander Stenhouse, M.D., the American Royalist whose estates were confiscated by the Republic at the close of the War of Independence. The doctor's loyalty was rewarded by a handsome pension from the British Government, but no provision was made for his children. His descendants are numerous, and none of them are rich. Mr. Maitland Stenhouse, in spite of his ultra-Tory traditions, is a pronounced democrat; yet he thinks the stagnant institutions of America are far inferior to the progressive democracy of England. He believes that America, so long the teacher of sovereigns and statesmen, is being gradually excelled by the more advanced of her pupils.

The Queen Pays All Expenses.

The Queen's last "Free Trip to Europe" having excited such universal interest, the publishers of that popular magazine offer another and $200 extra for expenses, to the person sending the largest list of English words constructed from letters contained in the words "British North America." Additional prizes, consisting of Silver Tea Sets, China Dinner Sets, Gold Watches, French Music Boxes, Portiers Curtains, Silk Dresses, Mantel Clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit. A special prize of a Seal Skin Jacket to the lady, and a handsome Shetland Pony to the girl or boy (delivered free in Canada or United States), sending largest lists. Everyone sending a list of not less than twenty words will receive a present. Send four 3c. stamps for complete rules, illustrated catalogue of prizes, and sample number of the Queen.

SEALERS ARRIVING.

Quite an Addition to the Fleet in Harbor—Vessels Reported.

On Saturday evening the schooner Kate, Capt. Owens, entered port from Behring sea. She had very bad luck, [illegible] the season. Capt. Owens is also very ill, and a return to port is necessary. Her catch is about 400.

The schooner E. B. Marvin, Capt. McKeil, was off the bell-buoy at midnight Saturday. A boat was sent ashore for a tug, and she was towed to an anchorage at daylight. She has 916 skins taken from Behring sea making her total catch 2,164 for the season. While in the sea one of her boats containing Mr. E. Shields, hunter, and two sailors was lost in the fog, but they were picked up the next day by the schooner Favorite, and in the course of a week returned to their own vessel. The people of the Marvin report bad weather, the fog being very heavy. The currents too, seem to flow in all sorts of directions, different from what has hitherto been known. This is also reported by other schooners. While in the sea the Marvin had the misfortune to get ashore while making a harbor to take on water. She was got off without much straining, but several seams were leaking freely, and it was thought advisable to return to port as the weather was so bad. She reports having spoken the Minnie in Ounimak Pass with 1500 seals from Behring Sea. The Favorite had 1200 when last spoken. The Henry Dennis, for Port Townsend, with 1500 skins, was in company with the Marvin on Saturday.

The sealer Pathfinder, Capt. Morgan, was towed in on Sunday morning by the steamer Badger at the same time as the Marvin. The Pathfinder has had fair luck, her hunters having secured 984 seals in Behring Sea.

One of the hunters of the schooner Pathfinder states that he was aboard the schooner Ollie J. Alger about the 15th of August, and that Capt. Minor stated that on the 1st of August schooner Lily, formerly the Alfred Adams, had been sighted. She had over 300 skins at that time, but on the 10th of July, the date the vessels were to meet at Northeast harbor, she had only thirty-five skins, and consequently did not report. At that time all were well on board, and she may turn up all right yet.

FROM THE ORIENT.

The P. M. S. S. City Rio de Janerio Arrived Sunday Morning.

On Sunday morning the American steamer City of Rio de Janerio, Capt. Austin, of the Pacific Mail Company, arrived off the outer wharf and came to an anchorage. There were forty tons of freight for this port, and 76 Chinese passengers and mails. In the cabin she carried sixty white passengers for different American points, and there was a total of 335 passengers on board, of all classes.

Among these there were thirty-six destitute American sailors taken on at Hong Kong. These are sailors from vessels who have run away or been invalided at that port, and they have been sent on by the consular authorities.

The officers of the customs here were kept busy all day yesterday examining the papers of the incoming Chinese, making out poll tax receipts, etc. The steamer sailed for 'Frisco in the afternoon. The abstract logs says she left Hong Kong Aug. 22nd and Yokohama Aug. 31st, 1890. To the meridian she had light southerly wind and smooth sea, thence to longitude 150 deg. W., had strong south-east gale with high sea; thence to port light variable wind and smooth sea, arrived at Victoria September 14th, at 8:32 a. m.

GLOVE CONTEST.

The Affair Between O'Donnell and Waters To-night.

The glove contest at Philharmonic Hall this evening, between Dan O'Donnell of San Francisco, and Billy Waters of this city, promises to be an exciting affair. While this will be the main attraction of the evening, a good programme of events by local and other talent has been arranged. The boxing between O'Donnell & Waters will be with six ounce gloves, for a purse of $150. An opportunity is seldom afforded for seeing two such good men in the ring, and admirers of the manly art should not fail to avail themselves of this chance.

To Load at Westminster.

The bark Titania finished unloading her freight for this port and was taken to Esquimalt this afternoon to discharge naval stores. She will then proceed to Vancouver to unload a small amount of freight for that city and then to Westminster to load salmon. The latter course is just an experiment and if successful will save a good deal of handling as heretofore the salmon has been brought from Westminster by steamer to this port.

A Cruel Parent.

Yesterday afternoon a farmer who resides outside the city was driving on Beacon Hill with his children. One of them offended by some childish act, and the little tot only four years of age, was severely horsewhipped by the cruel father. A bystander remonstrated, and the whip wielder retorted by saying "I'll serve you the same," but he didn't do it, as the bystander happens to be a Man, and not a little child, consequently the whipper thought better of his threat. After flogging the poor little child, the father threw the infant into the buggy, not seeming to care whether it was injured or not.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

Rather Inconsiderate

To expect a man to be as much of a man without a wife as with one, is just as reasonable as to expect your wife to do as good and as quick work without a Jubilee Range as with one.

Splendid Clothing.

Few eastern stores and practically none in this province are making such a splendid display of gents suits, pants overcoats, reefer jackets and general furnishings, as Russell, McDonald & Co., 134 Douglas street.

Southward Bound.

The steamer Walla Walla, which sails south to-morrow will carry the following passengers for San Francisco: Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. A. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Berendt, Mrs. F. Adams and son, Mrs. Dunlevy, Mrs. T. Lubbe, G. Miller and W. Elger.

A Defective Lamp.

The arc lamp corner of Wharf and Johnson streets has not been giving forth that amount of light lately which it should do. Residents thereabouts, and persons having to do with vessels lying at the wharves near by, are complaining of the lack of light.

Unmercifully Beaten.

A Chinese cook employed by Mr. E. E. Blackwood was held up by a party of three hoodlums on Saturday evening and beaten unmercifully. His face was badly scratched up and his clothes were almost torn off. If the parties are caught the police will make it lively for them.

Lack of Water.

Ladies and gentlemen who have graves to attend to at the Ross Bay cemetery complain of the distance they have to carry water to water their flowers. There are a number of faucets around the graveyard, but for some reason water fails to come through them as it used to do.

Licenses Refused.

The licensing board consisting of Mayor Grant, Ald. Harrison and Robt. Ward, J. P., refused licenses to John Draut for a saloon at the corner of Johnson and Blanchard streets, and R. A. Shore, for one on Yates street, as the act was not complied with. James Meldrum was granted a transfer of the Ship Inn from F. Leslouis. Both parties had their places fitted up as hotels and are naturally disappointed. Mr. Draut fitted up a three story building and if a license was granted the owner of the block, Geo. Sielly, intended to make large additions to it.

Prepare for Cold Weather.

Cold weather is coming and warmer clothing is quite necessary to preserve health, therefore you should act wise and save a dollar or two by having your last fall's overcoats and suits cleaned and repaired or dyed. Ladies' spring jackets can be dyed and made to look respectable for fall and winter. Bring them now to the Victoria Tailoring and Dying establishment, and avoid disappointment. No. 96 Yates street.

JNO. T. PIERRE, Proprietor.

N.B.—Another shipment of English trousering to hand.

A Neat Model.

One of the sailors aboard the sealing schooner Pathfinder, Wm. Dominey by name, has occupied his spare hours while out this past season by fashioning a model schooner. The little craft is about two feet over all, and is finished in the minutest detail. She is a reproduction in miniature of the celebrated swift schooner Maude S, aboard which Mr. Dominy has served. As a model she is perfect, and a great amount of patience and ingenuity must have been exercised in her construction. Captain Morgan, of the Pathfinder, has also made a very fine half-model of a steamer during the cruise.

H. M. S. Pinafore To-night.

The Seattle Amateur Opera Company, which opened the new Madison Street Theatre, Seattle, on last Thursday night, will give a performance at the Victoria theatre this evening, of Gilbert & Sullivan's comic opera, H. M. S. Pinafore. A large number of seats have been booked and much interest is manifested in the performance of the American amateurs, whose work will be critically compared with that of our own clever amateur actors. The latter had better look out for their laurels, as the Seattle papers were unstinted in their praise of last Thursday's performance. A crowded house should greet our visitors, and those who go will be well pleased.

New Wellington.

Persons visiting New Wellington (Northfield), says the Free Press, are often heard to express their astonishment at the rapid growth of that settlement by the number of buildings that have been recently erected. There are already several stores opened on the main road and said to be doing a good business, in addition to, these it is expected there will shortly be two saloons in full swing, providing no difficulty is met with in obtaining the necessary license. It is generally believed that if the building goes on at the present rapid rate, New Wellington will be nearly the size of Wellington by the close of next summer when it is thought it will more resemble a town than a mining camp.

NOT COMPLIMENTARY.

An Indian Chief Whose Opinion of the Navy is Not High.

Indian Chief Maquina, of the Nootkas, was Saturday on board H. M. S. Warspite at Esquimalt. The venerable chief, in whose veins flows the blood of the old Spanish adventurers who long ago visited this coast, was tricked out in gold lace and finery befitting his position as head sachem.

While aboard the Warspite he was shown over that modern and powerful fighting ship. The big guns and the little guns were exhibited and their wonderful workings fully explained through an interpreter. The massive engines and the death dealing torpedoes. The electric light, and the thousand and one things to be seen aboard a man-of-war, were all disclosed to his chieftainship. After the visit Maquina asked how many men were on board the vessel. He was told six hundred.

"Oh, palefaces," said he to the officers, "surely you must be weak of heart like the young deer when she hears the howl of the forest wolf. You have six hundred men and a big canoe with guns and powder and thousands of bullets, and yet you let the Boston men take the little sealing schooners. Your men must be squaws, they won't fight." Disgusted Maquina left the Warspite, firmly believing that it is her commander's fault that any schooners were seized by the Americans last year. He evidently knows nothing of diplomatic settlement of these disputes between nations, and would prefer seeing it done by force of arms. The officers of the Warspite took the old chief's reproof good naturedly, as its sting of reproach was withdrawn considerably by having to be translated.

ANNUAL AMATEUR MEETING.

The Football Club's Meeting Proves a Success.

A large crowd gathered together on a fine day, with lots of excitement to keep them in good spirits, cannot help but enjoy themselves. This was the case at the first annual amateur meeting of the Football Club held at the Driving Park on Saturday afternoon. The sports were hotly contested, extra interest being taken on account of the handsome prizes offered. The club by Saturday's meeting has placed itself in the foremost rank of athletic clubs in B. C., and for that matter a better day's amateur sport could not have been offered on the coast. The Warspite band discoursed melody, and the music was pronounced by all to be splendid. The track was in first-class order, the Jockey Club having had it fixed up for just such events as Saturday's.

The first contest, drop kicking football, was won by W. A. Ward, E. Miller, second. Ward's distance was 50 yards. Miller's a few inches less.

D. A. Smith, Vancouver, won the 100 yard dash in 10 2-5 seconds. The prize was a gold medal.

W. A. Ward was the winner in the next three events, the broad jump, 220 yard hurdle race and throwing a cricket ball. Ward also won the 110 yard dash picking up football, but had to work harder than in the former contest, R. W. Clarke of the lacrosse club giving him battle.

The quarter mile dash for a gold medal and the championship of B. C., was won by D. A. Smith of Vancouver who proved too fast for his opponents.

The mile race for non-commissioners of the Army and Navy was won easily by Mills of the Warspite.

In the half mile race it was expected that Smith, of Vancouver, would do as in the other races he ran in, but W. Ward proved too fast and won in 2.18. Kenning, of the Lacrosse club, and Pemberton, made a plucky fight for second place, Smith coming fourth.

Clarke and Miller won the three-legged race, and Clarke also won the sack race.

The one mile championship race was won by Blight in 5:08, Tite making a good second. The tug of war between the navy and the football club was won by the latter and ended a day of good square sport.

Left Behind.

While the steamer Rio de Janerio was anchored off the wharf yesterday, several of her passengers in transit to San Francisco, came ashore to look around the city. Among them were two sons of Scotia, and when the hour of sailing arrived these two were not present. Just as the steamer was leaving her anchorage, however, the two gentlemen were seen on the wharf making frantic gesticulations for her to wait. The steamer would not wait, but steamed slowly away. A small tug was near the wharf and could easily have caught the big vessel, but as only $2 was offered by the left ones for the use of the tug, no move was made, and now the late passengers will have to remain until the next boat for 'Frisco sails.

Sanitary.

Although this favored city of ours ranks second in the Dominion in respect to health, judged from a death-rate stand-point. Yet this is no reason why this salubrious spot should not be made a sanitarium to which would flock, not only those in sinking health, but the more fortunate who possess it, and are anxious to retain that necessary quality conducive to happiness. London, England, through the agency of sewers, has been made even more healthful than many of the provincial small towns. Looking at the proposed carrying out of a system of sewers for this city, from the benefits derived by the large population of the city of London, the ratepayers of Victoria, one and all, should cast their votes on Thursday next so as to enable the council to at once commence the construction of a system of sewerage and make this city a place to live in beyond compare.

Extension of the E. & N. Railway.

It is reported, says the Free Press, that it is the intention of the E. & N. Railway Company to commence the extension of the present line to Comox early next spring. This has been deemed necessary by the company by the indications of the mines at Union and Comox showing such good prospect.

Going North Again.

Capt. Clarence Cox of the schooner Triumph has determined to take his vessel north again to try sealing during the month of October. A number of hardy hunters, all young men, and a big crew of able sailors have been secured, and the experiment of sealing in the fall months will be made.

Church Items.

DON'T dispute with your Wife, when she says Cameron's goods are the only ones to buy; because she knows what she's talking about.
